Where in the world is Ukraine

Ukraine is a country in Eastern Europe that covers 233,062 square miles.

This is roughly the size of the states of Arizona and New Mexico combined, making Ukraine the largest country that's located entirely on the continent of Europe. (Russia is larger but is located on both the European and the Asian continents.)

Ukraine is bordered by Russia to the northeast; Belarus to the north; Poland, Slovakia, and Hungary to the west; and Romania, Moldova, and the Black Sea to the south.

Now that we know a bit more about the land, let's learn more about the people:

- There are 42 million people who call Ukraine their home.
- If you lived in Ukraine, you would probably eat a lot of bread, soup, and dishes made with potatoes, cabbage, or chicken.
- If you went to church in Ukraine, you would most likely go to an Eastern Orthodox church.
- To talk to your friends in Ukraine, you would speak Ukrainian.
- To greet someone in Ukrainian, you would say, "dobryj den" (pronounced "Dough-Bree-Den").

"The King will reply, 'Truly I tell you, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers and sisters of mine, you did for me.'"
